
Contents

List of contributors	vii
Foreword Christopher Brown, Director of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children	xi
Introduction Participation and empowerment in child protection Murray Davies and Christopher Cloke	xiii
1 Child protection rights: can an international declaration be an effective instrument for protecting children Yvonne Joseph	1
2 Children's rights to participation: a critique Gerison Lansdown	19
3 Consulting children about the effectiveness of school-based victimisation prevention programmes Jennifer Dziuba-Leatherman, David Finkelhor and Nancy Asdigian	39
4 No one ever listens to us: interviewing children and young people Howard Williamson and Ian Butler	61
5 From the margin to the centre: empowering the black child Panna Modi, Caroline Marks and Rhonda Watley	80
6 Young people with a disability: aspects of social empowerment Peter Appleton	104
7 The Dolphin Project: the impact of the Children Act Ann Buchanan	120
8 Issues for children and young people in local authority accommodation Chris Wilson	140
9 Approaches to empowerment and participation and in child protection Ilan Katz	154
10 Perceptions of child protection casework: views from children, parents and practitioners Helen Westcott	170

11	Involving and empowering children and young people: overcoming the barriers Phil Treseder	207
12	Child advocacy: getting the child's voice heard Nicky Scutt	232
13	Improving quality through participation: an approach to measuring children's expectations and perceptions of services Murray Davies and John Dotchin	248
14	Forging the circle: the relationship between children, policy, research and practice in children's rights Christopher Cloke	265
	Index	286

The opinions expressed in this book are those of the individual authors and do not necessarily represent the policies or practice of the NSPCC.