

Contents

Acknowledgements IX

Introduction 1

- 1 Objective of the Study 2
- 2 Approach 5
 - 2.1 Compliance 5
 - 2.2 Effectiveness 6
- 3 Argument 10
- 4 Legal Framework 13
- 5 Methodology 16
- 6 Structure 19

PART 1

A Discourse Analysis of Political Theories – in the Presence of a Paradigm Shift

- 1 Introduction to Part 1 25
- 1 The Four Paradigms or Ideal-Types in the Discipline of International Relations 27
- 2 The Different Debates in the Discipline of International Relations 31
 - 1 The First Debate – an Ontological Question 31
 - 2 The Second Debate – a Methodological Shift 32
 - 3 The Inter-paradigmatic Debate 37
 - 4 The Third Debate – an Epistemological Question 38

PART 2

Rational Choice Theories and International Human Rights Treaties

- 1 Introduction to Part 2 45
- 3 Realism: Theory and (the Effectiveness of) International Human Rights Treaties 47
 - 1 An Outdated Realism? 47
 - 2 Situating Coercion, Effects and State Behaviour – the Existential Dialectics of Love and Power 51

- 3 International Human Rights Law – the Function of a Given Political Order 54
- 3.1 The Concept of the Lesser Evil 54
- 3.2 The Reality of Human Right Norms 56
- 3.3 Consecrating the Primacy of the Political 57
- 4 Liberalism: Theory and the Effectiveness of International Human Rights Treaties 63
- 1 Situating Domestic Politics, Effects and State Behaviour 65
- 2 Prognoses on the Effects of State Behaviour 69
- 2.1 The Implementation of the International Human Rights Treaties – the Direct Applicability of Human Rights Treaties 71
- 2.2 Compliance with Inconvenient Human Rights Treaty Norms 79
- 2.2.1 Testing Easy-detectable Human Rights Treaty Violations 80
- 2.2.2 Testing not Easy-detectable Human Rights Treaty Violations 82
- 2.2.3 Empirical Evidence and Conflictual Results 89
- 5 Institutionalism: Theory and the Effectiveness of International Human Rights Treaties 95
- 1 Defining and Identifying Regimes 96
- 2 The International Human Rights Treaty Regime 100
- 3 Situating International Regimes, Effects and State Behaviour 102
- 3.1 Neoliberal Institutionalism 102
- 3.1.1 The Reasons Behind Compliance 103
- 3.1.2 Rational Choice and Functional Explanation 104
- 3.2 Neorealism 109
- 3.3 Constructivist Institutionalism 112
- 3.3.1 Weak Cognitivists – Leaving Intact the Ontology 113
- 3.4 Towards a More Comprehensive Approach – a Contextualized Rationalist Solution 114
- 4 Prognoses on the Effects of State Behaviour 116
- 4.1 Implementation of International Human Rights Treaties 118
- 4.1.1 Reciprocity – Relative Gains and Hegemonic Power 118
- 4.1.2 Game Theoretical Constellations 123

- 4.2 Compliance with Inconvenient Human Rights Treaty Norms 140
 - 4.2.1 Circumventing Inconvenient Norms by the Formulation of Reservations 140
 - 4.2.2 Game Theoretical Constellations 145
- 5 Constructivism – towards an Entire Different Ontology 153

PART 3

Normative Choice Theories and International Human Rights Treaties

- 1 Introduction to Part 3 159
- 6 Fairness: Theory and the Effectiveness of International Human Rights Treaties 161
 - 1 Situating Legitimacy and Distributive Justice, Effects and State Behaviour 161
 - 1.1 Legitimacy – the Procedural Aspect of Fairness 162
 - 1.2 Distributive Justice – the Substantive Aspect of Fairness 169
 - 2 Prognoses on the Effects on State Behaviour – the Quest for Rationality 174
 - 2.1 Considerations of Legitimacy – a ‘Felt’ Sense of Obligation 175
 - 2.1.1 Determinacy of the ICCPR and the ICESCR 176
 - 2.1.2 Symbolic Validation of International Human Rights Treaties 182
 - 2.1.3 Coherence in the Application of the ICCPR and the ICESCR 182
 - 2.1.4 Adherence to International Human Rights Treaties 184
 - 2.2 Considerations of Distributive Justice – the Consequential Effects of Norms 186
- 7 Transnational Legal Process: Theory and the Effectiveness of International Human Rights Treaties 190
 - 1 Situating Vertical Internalization, Effects and State Behaviour 191
 - 2 Prognosis on the Effects of State Behaviour 196
 - 2.1 Implementation of International Human Rights Treaties 197
 - 2.1.1 Constructivist Insights – Legal, Political, Social Strategies of Persuasion 197
 - 2.1.2 Constructivist Insights – Acculturation as Mechanisms of Persuasion 200

2.2	Compliance with Inconvenient Human Rights Treaty Norms	205
2.2.1	Constructivist Insights on the Legal Process and Norm Properties	206
2.2.2	Constructivist Insights on the Role of Idea and Beliefs	208
8	Managerial Process: Theory and the Effectiveness of International Human Rights Treaties	212
1	Situating Persuasiveness, Effects and State Behaviour	212
1.1	Propensity to Comply	212
1.2	The Reasons Behind Non-compliance	213
1.3	Sanctions	214
1.4	Managerial Strategy	215
2	Prognoses on the Effects on State Behaviour – the Quest for Dialogue and Capacity Building	216
2.1	Implementation of the International Human Rights Treaties	216
2.1.1	A Dynamic of Dialogue and Accountability	216
2.1.2	The Use of Human Rights Indicators	220
2.2	Compliance with Inconvenient Human Rights Treaty Norms – a Lack of Discourse or Rather a Meaningless Discourse?	223
9	The Autonomous Legal Discourse and the Appellative or the Discursive Effect of Human Rights	227
1	The Concept of Law and the Concept of Legal Validity	227
2	Effectiveness and Legal Validity – Effectiveness as a Juristic Presupposition	232
3	Legal Validity, Social Reality, and the Autonomous Human Rights Discourse	235
	Conclusion	237
	Bibliography	243
	Index	278